HOME ATTRACTIVE AND THE HOME CIRCLE
TO GLOW WITH CHEER.

HOWE ATTRACTIVE AND THE HOME CIRCLE
"I believe," said he, "if the election were to take place today Harrison would carry the state by a large majority."
"How do you make that out, Mr. Durham?"
"Simply because many of the dr. Durham?"

Washington people continue to appear at every turn. I met ex-Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Chas. E. Coon on Broadway and asked him to tell the people of Washington what he thought of the political situation. "I think the republicans are in good shape,"

"What about the kiokers?" was asked.
"What about the kiokers?" was asked.
"Oh, that will soon disappear," he said. "I have reason to believe that Senator Platt, who was the most prominent among those who were disastisfied, is going to pull off his coat in the interest of his party. Certainly he will not stand in the way of party success, and will, I am assured, give his assistance and advice in carrying the state, which I believe we shall do."
Mr. Linden Kent of Washington is spending some time here. I saw him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, but he was not inclined to talk for publication. Mr. Kent is net much of a politician, but a close observer, and he makes no secret of his belief that the selection of Mr. Dickinson is not the most satisfactory one that might have been made for the people of New York or of the south. Mr. Dickinson's course at Chicago was not such as to make the average New Yorker or southerner fall dead in love with him. His entry at the head of the Michigan delegation and the scene which followed, especially when a Michigan standard bearer attempted to place a Cleveland banner among the New York delegation did not have a tendency to enthuse the anti-Cleveland men of New York and other parts of the country in favor of Mr. Dickinson.

There is a good deal of important consultation entire or the party of the party of the party of the country in favor of Mr. Dickinson.

arrived at by which the republicans will cast their votes for alliance candidates in certain of the southern states with the purpose of taking away some democratic strength and the hope of getting alliance votes for republican candidates in other states. It is not probable, however, that this will prevail to any considerable extent, though the plan may be followed in one or two of the southern states.

Really the republicans have little to gain by this process, for, unless they have a majority of the electoral votes, they would have little advantage in reducing the democratic vote, since the absence of a clear majority by either party would simply throw the election into the House and there elect a democratic candidate. It is quite probable, however, that the republicans may take advantage in cartain southern states of the wide division of the alliance and democrats and make a fight to elect republican electors.

It is understood that President Herricon dark blue tailor-made gown and wore a black look at adorned with a few red berries. She looked better than she did last night. She entered the court room leaning on Missionary Buck's arm. She was somewhat nervous, but did not show feeling by either tears or trembling. She was given a seat by her counsel and her sister Emma, and Rev. E. A. Buck occupied a seat in front of the dock.

The trial was commenced by the entering of a plea signed and sworn to by the prisoner. It recited that the prisoner objected to the opening of a trial before a justice who was already sitting at an inquest held to determine who committed the crime charged against her.

This plea was overruled for the time being, and the judge asked for the rading of the complaint. The reading was waved, and Mr. Jennings said he would enter a plea of not guilty. District Attorney Knowlton, who was conducting the government's case, insisted that Miss Borden plead herself.

The clerk of the court asked her to stand up, which she did firmly and without assistance. She was then asked to plead to charges of homicide, and did so in a very weak voice, saying. "Not guilty."

The clerk did not hear he, whereupon Miss Borden said in a quite loud vice, "Not guilty." putting strong emphasis on the first word.

Mr. Jennings then began the argue for the acceptance of his plea that hi client should not be examined before the cart where she had already been examined at the inquest. The proceeding, he claimed, was ontrary to all law and justice. He added, that as attorney for Lizzie Borden he had been risused permission to enter and guide his clientwhite an inquiry was being made. It was not to be expected of human nature that the same idge conid act at an inquest and a trial and decide fairly in both cases. The proceeding, according to Mr. Jennings, was wholly unprecedentd.

District Attorney Knowltot entered a demurrer against the plea. He aid he knew of more than twenty cases in his ever where similar proceedings were gone though with and they failed to attract att Of course the hardest fighting will be done in New York and Indiana, yet there will be a score of other states in which the fight will be pushed more vigorously than in any previous campaign. Advices from Louisiana give the republicans strong hope of being able to carry that state. These advices indicate that from 50,000 to 75,000 votes, which were formerly cast for democratic electors, will this time be given to the alliance or third party ticket.

On the whole this new development in the way of fighting in new ground promises more to the democrats than to the republicans. There is a larger number of formerly republican states which are now in the doubtful column than there are of the formerly democratic states now classed as doubtful. The difference between the republican and democratic situation is that the republicans have got to fight to retain their hold upon nearly a dozen states while the democrate know that even if they are defeated by the Alliance in certain southern states they are sure to win if that merely results in throwing the election into the House. Hence they are not under such stress of spreading out their forces in self protection as are republicans, and they can go into the fight in republicans states the more easily.

Of course the great battle ground will be right here in New York state. And up to this time the democrats are showing more cordial cooperation so far as relates to the leaders. Say what you may about the so-called disaffection among the democrats the leaders are not indicating any great amount of antagonism. Even those who were most active in opposing Cleveland are taking off their coats and giving a good indication at least of cordial co-operation.

This much cannot be said for some of the

it is expected that a preliminary trial will be commenced before Judge Blaisdeil.

The Borden safe was opened this morning after a Boston locksmith had been at work at it about eight hours. The contents of it will not be given for publication. They were bundled and tied with a strong cord and after Attorney Jennings and Officer Harrington had affixed their signatures on the outside the bundle was taken to the Eafe Deposit and Trust Company and deposited.

It is understood that President Harrison still clings to the belief that Tennessee might be carried for the republicans and that Secretary Elkins is not without hope of a similar result in West Virginia and possibly North Carolina. Their theory is that with the alliance in the field to help in the final count of the votes they would be more likely to prevent being counted out than if there were but two electoral tickets in the field. It is understood, too, that the republicans intend to make a fight for New Jersey and Connecticut. Poisoner. GETTING INTO LINE. Republicans Semewhat Encouraged by Ex DEMOCRATIC BAIDS IN THE WEST. This much cannot be said for some of the republican leaders. On the other hand the rank and file the results who do the voting seem to

Just what is going on between Platt and the other leaders ing on between Platt and the other leaders the public are not permitted to know, but that he is having quiet consultations with Whitelaw Reid, Clarkson, McComas and others at the headquarters of the national organization cannot be doubted. His assertion that he did not want to be placated may have meant all that it said, but whether that is the fact or not, there is reason to believe that he is getting into line. It is just possible that Mr. Platt may have some personal plans with reference to either the senatorship or some important position under the next administration, should it be republican.

The recent decision by the courts in this

The recent decision by the courts in this state against the arrangement of the legislative districts has given the republicans a good deal of hope in regard to the senatorship. They now have quite strong hopes that they will be able to carry enough districts to gain control of the legislature and elect a republican successor to Senator Hiscock. Mr. Platt has not been much enamored of Senator Hiscock's methods of late, and he evidently prefers to get himself inside of the party lines, so as to be able to have a hand in the farming out of the senatorship when that time comes, if it should come.

here with the selection of the managers of the democratic campaign. With Mr. Harrity, a Cleveland man, as chairman of the national committee, Mr. Dickinson as chairman of the executive committee and Mr. Whitney, a Cleveland man, as the mainspring of the machinery which is to run the campaign, there is a growing feeling among the anti-Cleveland men that they are not to be "in it" in case of democratic success. And while there is apparent acquiescence in the situation, it is believed that the anti-Cleveland men will make no efforts toward his election unless they get some definite and satisfactory arrangements with reference to the city and county end of the political pudding.

JAI DURHAN'S VIEW OF THE FIGHT

I have been quite impressed with some re-marks made by an experienced newspaper man, BEEN REPLENISHED WITH A HANDSOME Ing the situation here day by day for the past three years. It was none other than the illustrious organizer of the "P. F. O. N." party, Mr. Jay Durham, formerly prominent on Press Row and in newspaper circles in Washington. "But is not the republican situation about as bad?"

"I think not. Mr. Platt, of course, has been holding back somewhat, but there is reason to believe that he is getting into line with the people who are managing the eampaign and I think that the republicans will soon get together for hard work. They seem to be managing their campaign well. Of course nobody can tell what a few weeks may bring forth, but I think if the election were to occur now Harrison would carry the state."

"And as to Indiana?"

"I have been in Indiana so little of late that may opinion would not be worth much, though may impression is that Mr. Harrison is quite as likely to carry the state this time as four years ago, when he did carry it."

Mr. Durham's views on this subject are especially interesting, because, to begin with he is a democrat; and, in the second place, he is brought closely into contant with the politicians of both sides and is in position to form a pretty accurate judgment of the situation.

Every night there are a large number of meetings of republican clabs, republican leagues republican ward organizations and that sort of thing, while up to this time the democrata have done practically nothing in that line. You scarcely see in the papers an account of democratic clubs, while the columns of the newspapers bristle with reports of meetings of local organizations in and out of New York. This would seem to indicate that among the masses the republicans have a decided advantage in the matter of enthusiasm, while on the other hand the democratic leaders are showing more of a disposition to get together than is The text of the complaint in the cases is as follows: Rufus H. The Market Intensely Duil—No Marked Change in Prices.

I never had but two fights with white prisoners.

One of them was too drunk to know what he was doing and when he sobered up made great many nice colored people in this city and I am surprised to know that two or three of them are doing their best to encourage their degraded brothren and sisters to resist arrest by force; it may not occur to some of these so-called leaders that that is what they are doing when they endeavor to oust Col.

ASSAULTS BY COLORED PRISONERS. Instances of assaults on policemen by colored prisoners are extremely numerous. To get at the total would be a tremendous task, but a few the total would be a tremendous task, but a few prominent samples may give those who know nothing of police affairs some idea as to the dangers officers have to encounter when, in line of duty, they are compelied to deprive colored criminals of their liberty.

Officer Daniel Sheahan had some superheated experiences. While endeavoring to arrest a desperate character known as "Ghost-robber" the officer was shot and painfully wounded, although he had used no violence at all. Just before that occurrence Sheahan had been assaulted down in Bloody Field, and to save his own life took that of the negro, who would have murdered him.

KILLING OF OFFICER FOWLER. Then there was the killing of Officer Fowler by "Guinea" Langston. Fowler was on duty with the chain gang, of which Langston was a member. With a strong wire the prisoner managed to undo the ball and chain which enter the chain gang of which Langston was a member. Fowler so that he died within an hour or so.
When captured by Officer Boland Langston regretted that he was not aware that the pistol

A desperado named Bush shot at and fatally wounded another tough samed Basey, just outside a saloon in Hell's Bottom. Officer Americus N. Crippen chased the murderer into a house.
He refused to surrender and fired at the officer.
Then followed an exchange of shots from which both Crippen and the murderer died, the former officer Matthew Mulioy arrested a colored man who had stolen several geese. The thief, who was armed with a hatchet, cut one of Mulioy's ears almost off, and would have brained his captor if he could possibly have managed it. Officer R. O. Melton is on detail duty today because a colored prisoner struck him with a heavy piece of pine joist. One eye is practically sightless as a result of the criminal's violence. STRUCK WITH A BRICK.
